City of Dallas 2024 Capital Bond Program

Dallas - The City of Dallas is proposing a $1 Billion 2024 Capital Bond Program for infrastructure projects.

These projects include streets, transportation, library, cultural arts, public safety, city facilities, park and recreation facilities, and housing and economic development.

On Aug. 17, 2022, the Office of Bond and Construction Management (BCM) discussed a stand-alone Housing Proposition that seeks to align with the City's housing goals, by not only investing in the creation of new affordable housing units, but to invest in the infrastructure needed, not limited to streets, traffic, and storm drainage improvements for potential housing developers to invest in our community as well as to continue to promote partnerships to create housing opportunities in areas of need. The potential Housing Proposition would be the catalyst to invest $300 Million of bond funds in Housing Infrastructure over the next 10 years.

For the next 15 months, the City will continue to coordinate all planning and developing efforts to present a Proposed 2024 Bond Program for consideration during a May 2024 Bond Election. The City is committed to collaborating and engaging with all necessary stakeholders to ensure that the Proposed 2024 Capital Bond Program equitability addresses the needs of the City.
