Five Mile Creek Watershed

About Five Mile Creek

- Rises near Dallas Executive Airport
- Over 15 miles in length, draining approximately 70 square miles of Southern Dallas
- The watershed is fed by numerous named tributaries, including Ledbetter Creek, Crow Creek, Adams Branch, Alice Branch, Woody Branch, Red Bird Creek, Ricketts Branch, Runyon Springs Branch, Lisbon Branch
- Home to some of Dallas' best known parks, including Kiest, Glenwood, and Boulder

A “Greenbelt Network” for Southern Dallas

Home to Dallas' "Heritage Landscapes"

The logo for Five Mile Creek Urban Greenbelt features a stylized blue number '5' on the left. To its right, the words 'MILE CREEK' are written in a large, bold, black sans-serif font. Below this, a green wavy line represents a creek. Underneath the wavy line, the words 'urban greenbelt' are written in a smaller, lowercase, black sans-serif font.

5 MILE CREEK

OUR VISION: An interconnected series of trails, parks, and greenspaces following the main stem and tributaries of Five Mile Creek. This greenbelt network would provide new recreational opportunities and unparalleled access to the natural beauty of the hills and valleys of Southern Dallas.

Deliverables

1. A Five Mile Creek Wilderness Greenbelt Master Plan document
2. Ten focus group interviews with key stakeholders, including political leadership, Dallas Park Department staff, local education institutions, neighborhood organizations, and potential implementation partners
3. Three public visioning workshops
4. One community survey

Community Engagement

We believe that expertise on place is local and robust engagement with local communities is essential to creating successful community spaces.

Our goal is to reach as many community members as possible through:

- 10 stakeholder and focus group interviews (minimum)
- 3 public community meetings
 - Tentatively planned to take place in the third week of October at Highland Hills Library, For Oak Cliff, UNT Dallas
 - Evening of Tuesday, October 16th *
 - Evening of Thursday, October 18th *
 - Afternoon of Saturday, October 20th *
 - *Dates are subject to change
- Public survey and Facebook page for project
